DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-15, drawn to nucleic acids, vector, host cell, method of expression, classified in class 536, subclass 23.1.
 - II. Claim 16, drawn to a process for identifying a compound, classified in class 435, subclass 6, for example.
 - III. Claim 17, drawn to a compound, classified in class 530, subclass 300, for example. The following is noted: Claim 17 recite a "compound". The specification discloses on page 59, line 27, that a large number of molecules are contemplated, including polypeptides, lipids, carbohydrates, or any organic or inorganic molecule. The examiner notes that these molecules do not share a substantial structural feature essential to a common utility. In addition, a person of ordinary skill in the art would not envision one in view of the other. If claims to structurally distinct molecules are presented during the course of prosecution, they will be subject to a restriction requirement rather than a species election.
2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions of Groups I and III represent separate and distinct products which are made by materially different methods, and are used in materially different methods which have different modes of operation, different functions and different effects. The polynucleic acid of Group I and the compound of Group III are all structurally and chemically different from each other. The polynucleotide is made by nucleic acid synthesis, while the compound which can be a polypeptide is made by translation of mRNA. Furthermore, the polynucleotide can be used for hybridization screening, and the compounds can be used for different methods of treatment to up-regulate and down-regulate the polypeptide in a clinical setting, for example. The examination of all groups would require different searches in the U.S. Patent shoes and the scientific literature and would require the consideration of different patentability issues. Thus the inventions I and III are patentably distinct.

Inventions I and II are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the nucleic acid in Group I can be used in a materially different method such as a method of expression in addition to the materially different method of Group II.

3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter and different classifications, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

4. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(l).
